Early Practice of the Washingtons to Begin Ere Long.

THE PROPOSED LOCAL LEAGUE

Opposition to the Temple Cup

The Senators will soon be here to begin active practice. "Old Reliable" Jim Mc-Guire and wife have arrived. Mack is in splendid condition, weighing less than he did at the beginning of last season, and says he feels able to duplicate his last season's work, when he caught 132 consecutive games. He has spent the winter in fishing and outdoor exercise, and for the past six weeks has been coaching a college team at his home city of Albion, Michigan. Upon his departure from there Wednesday his friends, headed by the college boys, accompanied by all the brass bands, drum corps and other noise-producing inventions of the place, escorted him to the depot. Some of the boys transformed themselves into an improvised jinrickshaw, upon which Mack was triumphantly carried, much against his earnest remonstrance. Mack's mother d'ed this winter, in consequence of which he will not return to Albion at the close of this season, but will join Cartwright in a southern given it out that the coming season will be the last for the Temple cup, and backs up his assertion with reasons therefor that reach the length of a column in a Chicago paper. Washington will not be directly interested in the Temple cup for the next couple seasons, but from an unbiased view of the situation, it would appear that for every reason advanced by Hart for the abandonment of the series there are at least a dozen why they should continue. The chief argument advanced by the Chicago man is that the games are liable to become crooked, owing to the additional money that would accrue, but that point seems almost silly, as it is borrowing trouble, and rests upon no foundation whatever. It is also claimed that this division of money was what wrecked the brotherhood, while, in fact, the league was the chief sufferer of the two, every man in it losing money, while Al. Johnson was about the only sufferer in the brotherhood. Hart's argument about the second club being bound to win the cup is also flimsy, as base ball is too uncertain to pick winners, and because games have resulted the same way three times in succession it is no 2-to-1 bet that the club that wins the league observed. twins the league championship will not win the Temple cup also in "M. The Western League has been presented with a similar trophy by a Detroit newspaper, and a little extra money will come the way of the first two clubs in that organization. This idea of the players raking in about 1500. of the players raking in about $500 each on extra-season games has been unpopular with several managers since the great suc-cess of the first cup series, and the financial question is no doubt the chief mote in the 'hicago magnate's eye. The best advice for the magnates who oppose the Temple cup series is not to borrow trouble, and to let well enough alone. They made considerable money last year, but from present in-dications will make more this, and should look on the question in a generous way, and not begrudge the players the little additional remuneration they secure through hard work in trying for the pennant.

President Hart of the Chicago club has

Last season there were really only two clubs in the Departmental League, the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and the Light Infantry teams, that could draw enough people to National Park to pay ex-penses. Mr. Strasberger, who has secured the option on the grounds, with last season's experience staring him in the face, refuses to sublet the grounds to the Departmental League, and insists on a guarantee. With the other department clubs artee. With the other department class out, it would not be a departmental league, therefore, why not call it an ama-teur league, take in the strong athletic clubs and insure thereby a successful sea-sen. Mr. Strasberger has no objection to Mr. Sousa assuming the reins of management of the new league, if he will insist on the clubs under him fulfilling their obligations to the letter. The clubs last year ap peared at the grounds without suits, began play so late that a full game could not be piay so late that a full game could not be gone through with, and everything was done in such a slipshod way that the on-lookers frequently left the grounds in disgust and never returned. When an admission is charged to see games, the patrons should be looked after, and if this wise course cannot be pursued the coming season, the grounds will be closed to amateur clubs.

Catcher Zimmer and Left Fielder Burkett of the Cleveland club have refused to sign contracts with that club for this season unless they are allowed the limit-$2,400. Without these two men the Spiders will be weakened about 15 per cent, as Burkett is the best batter in the country, and there are none better than Zimmer in the catch-ers' class. These players have been offered $2,100, but are worth the limit if any one is. Mr. Robison of the Clevelands says he will go no more, and charges the players with ingratitude, because he gave them the opportunity to play in the Temple cup series and thereby make about $550. The Cleveland club cleared about $25,000 last season, owing to the superb work of the players, and incidentally got into the Tem-ple cup series. Had the team finished, say, sixth, would the club have cleared that hice sum? Now, because the players who contributed about 15 per cent to last year's success demand an increase of $000 as a reward for their good work, the Cleveland magnate charges ingratitude. Both Bur-kett and Zimmer have more than a fair share of intelligence, and will, no doubt, play for the salary offered rather than re-main idle, but it is a fair guess that they will not put forth their best efforts, but will give exactly $2,100 worth of play, nothing more, nothing less. Last year Childs' dissatisfaction probably lost the Clevelands the pennant, as through his absence and poor play fully a dezen games were lost. With Burkett and Zimmer dissatisfied, it is a foregone conclusion that through lack the team will be lucky to finish in the first division. Young and Cuppy in the first division. Loung and Cuppy may pitch their arms off, but if they haven't the proper support their good work will go for naught. Instead of a case of ingratitude, it looks like a case of non-approximation.

From all the surface indications it appears as if the entire New York press has taken it in its head to drive Fred Pfeffer off the New York team. The attacks made on him are not open and above board, but break out here and there in little para-graphs to the effect that it is becoming evident day by day that Pfeffer will not do at second and that he will have to go. One writer especially has had it in for Pfeffer ever since last fall and has kept up a continual bombardment of abuse ever since. The first game Fred played in Jacksonville he had 5 put outs, 3 assists, 5 hits, including two doubles, and 1 error. The one error did the business, and he was hammered by this persistent writer, who is with the Giants on the trip to the south. In the games since then Pfeffer has more than held his own and cannot but strength than held his own and cannot but strengthen the New Yorks where they were weak last season. He is undoubtedly one of the hest second basemen in the business, taking batting, fielding and base funning into consideration. Bid McPhee being about the only man that can outpoint him. If Pfeffer gets away from New York he will undoubtedly go to Chicago and if the beauty. edly go to Chicago, and, if the backers of the latter club are not doing a little mis-sionary work in the way of subsidizing the New York base ball writers to "knock" Fred, then all the indications fail. Arthur Irwin is aware of Pfeffer's worth and will try to hold onto him, but persistent under-hand play cannot but have its bad effect in

Tommy Dowd got what he went after and went to Texas with the St. Louis team. Dick Cooley and Breitenstein are still outside the fold. The former wants more money and the latter claims the club broke its greement. "Tuck" Turner for Cincinnati wouldn't be a bad move. The Phillies can spare him, and he would strengthen the Red Legs where they are a little weak. Hoy and Burke are better fielders, but "Tuck" as a batter is in A-1 class.

The Cleveland boys are crowing over their

WILL SOON BE HERE springs. The latter club is minus Ely, the shortstop, and the pitchers are taking things easy, therefore it is hard to get a line on the two clubs.

The exchange of Cartwright for Tucker does not look like a bad one for either side. Cartwright outfielded and outbatted the Boston boy last season, but the Senators are shy on hustlers and Tucker would be a great help to Joyce.

The lines are drawing closer around the dissatisfied players, Rusie, Breitenstein, Burkett, Zimmer, Cooley and Foreman being the only ones that have not signed contracts and are still outside the breastworks.

The strength of the Senators will be in-creased the coming season owing to the fact that every player on the team is satisfied with his contract and has no kick coming over salary. If there is playing ability on the team it should come out

"You Lose" Mack of the Pittsburgs says
the smoky city team will make a runaway start in the pennant race and keep it up throughout the season. He only wants three straight at Cincinnati at the opening of the season. If Pittsburg can hold to-gether through July they should be well

Fred Pfeffer has not been playing like a man who has "dissipated for months," or who was only on the verge of the grave recently. He has hit safely in each of the five games he has played in, having a total of ten hits. He has a record of twentythree chances accepted without an error.-Exchange.
Suppose Harry Stovey had listened to the pleadings of "Bill" McGunnigle in 1800 and accepted the offer of $15,000 for a three-years' contract to go to Brooklyn, $2,000 in advance. His subsequent career might have entirely changed. He would have had a "cinch" for three years at any rate, as Gus Abell's word is as good as his bond.-Morse, in Sporting Life.

Never before in the history of base ball in St. Louis has there been as little confidence in the ability of the St. Louis team to cope with those in other league cities, and this is largely attributed to the fact that the getting together and getting into shape of the players has been sadly neglected—Ex shape of the players has been sadly neglected.—Ex.

Doyle made a beaut-ful long headforemost slide to the base just for practice. The boys applauded the slide, and one remarked: "That is something Carey did not do all last season." Base running is one of the most important things in base ball, and as a base runner poyle is as strong of Carey. a base rur ner Doyle is as strong as Carey was weak.

Cooley is taking a strong stand. He took up the proper position and held it manfully. He has a chance for his "white alley." The odds against Breitenstein are overwhelming. Pefore he signed a contract he was in a safe position. Now he is between two grinding milistenes.

McPhee's work is as clean and brilliant as ever it was, and the only proof that he is not as young as he was when he joined the Reds in 1882 is a picture of the team of 1882, which hangs in a half-way house near 1882, which hangs in a half-way house near the New Orleans Park. This represents Mack as a slim, smooth-faced boy.

Breitenstein went out to Sportsman's Park Tuesday, but did not come to terms with Mr. Von der Ahe. In fact, the president refusad to see him, and instead of a personal interview, served a written notice on the pitcher that if he did not show up on April 16 in good condition he would be severely disciplined. He also informed Breitenstein that his presence around the race track was "distasteful, and would race track was "distasteful, and would cause unnecessary comment." It is now in order to raise the old howl of "he is discontented and will not do good work in St. Louis" to furnish a good excuse to sell Breitenstein.

A Cleveland paper says: "Philadelphia is no stronger than last season, while Pittsburg is a great deal. Though the World has done its share of joking with the Pittsburg people about Fred Ely and Denny Lyons, the addition of these men to the Pitts burg infield will strengthen the Pirates Lyons, of course, will have to keep sober to be of any use to Pittsburg, but there is good enough reason to believe that he has decided that he must mend his ways. Pittsburg ought to finish as good as fourth. Fifth is about the lowest the Pirates will fall."

DEPARTURE OF PRINCETON'S TEAM

They Will Represent America in

NATURE OF THE EVENTS

The most interesting international ath letic contests will be the Olympian games at Athens next month. America will be represented by a team from Princeton College, who sail for Naples today on the steamship Fulda. The athletes will go from Naples to Brindisi by rail, to Patras, Greece, by boat, and by rail again to Athens, arriving there the day before the

This gives the men no time to train except to take such exercise as may be possible on the steamship.

Departure From Princeton.

It is safe to say no other athletic contests in which Princeton has ever entered has Becker, W. B., 1420 N. Y. ave. caused more enthusiasm among the undergraduates than the ones to be held at Athens. Pandemonium reigned at the depot yesterday, when, amid the cheers of the entire undergraduate body, the quartet started on the journey.

Captain Robert Garrett prepared for college at Baltimore, and entered Princeton in Dobyns, T. A., 2d & Pa. avc. s.e. 1893. He is the son of the late T. Harrison Garrett, a brother of Robert Garrett, the former president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. In his freshman year Daly, W. W., Center Market. at Princeton young Garrett showed some ability in the weights and jumps. Trainer George Goldle took him in hand, trained him in putting the shot especially, and has now succeeded in putting him very close to the first rank of college athletes.

He has gradually increased his distance in the shot-put from thirty-five to forty feet. In the broad jump his best distance is 21 feet 9 inches, and in the high jump 5 feet 8 inches. At Athens he will enter all these events; in addition he will compete in the horizontal bar vault and the throwing of the discus. He recently established a college record in the horizontal bar vault by doing 7 feet 3 inches. Captain Garrett is twenty-one years of age, weighs 176 pounds,

Francis A. Lane, '97, is the man whom Princeton students look to more than any other member of the team to win glory for his college. At his preparatory school he made a wide reputation as a sprinter, winning the champlonship of Ohio in the 100-yards run in 10 1-5 seconds, and subsequently in 10 seconds flat. In the fall handicap games at Princeton he won his heat in the hundred from scratch in 10 seconds flat, but the effort lamed him, and he did not enter the final heat. He is now in the very pink of condition. Mr. Lane is twenty-one years of condition. Mr. Lane is twenty-one years of age, weighs 155 pounds, and measures of age, weight and to inches.

Albert Clinton Tyler is widely known as the right tackle of the 'Varsity foot ball eleven. After Captain Lea's injury in the Harvard-Princeton game last fall, Tyler was istrusted with his place in the line. His home is at Wyoming, Cincinnati, Ohio. In '93 he competed in the fall handicap games of the track team, the pole vault being his specialty. He is the holder of the state record for Ohio in the pole vault. He is twenty-three years of age, stand 6 feet tall and tips the beam at 180 pounds. He will enter but one event at Athens-the pole

H. B. Jamison of Peoria, Ill., is the lucky youth whom Captain Garrett has selected to take as a substitute for Colfelt, 'M, whose parents objected to his accompanying the team to Athers. His best performances are as follows: 100 yards dash, 10 1-5 seconds; 220 yards dash, 22 3-5; quarter-mile run, 53 3-5 seconds. At the interscholastic championship meet in 1893 he distinguished himself by winning for his school three events, the 50, the 100 and the 220 yards dashes. In the fall of 1893 he went to Princeton and secured a position on the track team in his freshman year. Since that time he has represented Princeton on the track in all games, and has made a creditable record. He will run in the 400 meters race, which is about equivalent to the quarter-mile run on American programs. His weight is 150 pounds, his age twenty years, and his height 5 feet 10 inches. For the last four or five weeks Manager E. B. Turner and Trainer Jack MacMasters, have been at work with a few of the track team with the purpose of getting them in training for the Olympic games.

The legends of the people tell of the beginning of the games and of their significance regarding religious matters, but nothing authentic is known concerning the date of their origin. The first games of which anything is recorded were of a humble and unimportant variety. The events in the first games were limited to long distance races. These contests of long distance running were held on the measured course known as the Stadium. Gradually these athletic contests became more and more important among the Greeks, and as their importance increased the num-ing, wrestling, horse and charlot racing were added to the events previously used. In the twentieth many novelties were introduced, such as men racing in full armor, colts racing and doing the work of full-grown horses, and boys taking part in events similar to those entered by men. The chariot races were confined to the wealthier class of people. In these races the contestants struggled not only to win the prize, but also to show their wealth and the amount of gold they could distrib-ute about their chariots and harness. All other events were open to rich and poor alike; no man who could prove a pure Greek descent was debarred from entering. Rigid rules were made and enforced among all contestants. The Olympic festivities were solemnized every fifth year, and were from four to five days in duration. They were held on the banks of the Alpheus, in the territory of the Elis.

The games derived their name from Olympia, the village in which they took place. Olympia was a site supposed to be hallowed by the gods, and the Greeks con-sidered that the gods were pleased by these athletic contests. They were held with the firm conviction that the wrath of the gods would be propitiated and that all pestilence would be removed from the land. Prizes of gold and silver were given the victors up to the time of the seventh Olympiad, but after this the winners were given only a wreath of white laurel. The Olympic games began with the full moon, and were continued day and night until finished. During these games a treaty of peace was made with all nations, and was known as a sort of "truce of God." Any violation of this treaty was severely punished.

The revival of these games, once so renowned, and the source from which our present sys-tem of athletics takes its rise, will be welcomed on all sides. quadrennial contests. Showered With Bouquets. NEW YORK, March 21 .- Four young men from Princeton University, who go abroad to represent that seat of learning at the Olympian games in Athens next month. were the recipients of a most enthusiastic demonstration upon the occasion of their departure today.

Almost as notable was the farewell given to the four representatives of the Boston Athletic Association, who also sailed on board the steamer Fulda, intending to participate in the same grand international events that attract the young collegians to the scene of contests of centuries ago. Three large omnibuses were needed to convey the Princetonians and their friends from the Murray Hill Hatel to the Fulda's pier in Hoboken. There farewells were said, and as the young athletes went aboard the steamer they were showered with bouquets by the ladies of the party. BOSTON'S OLYMPIC TEAM. Records of the Athletes Who Will Go to Greece.

W. W. Hoyt, a pole vaulter, record, 11 feet 23-4 inches, has determined to accompany the Boston Athletic Association team to Athens to compete in the Olympic games. The other men of the team, with their records, are: T. E. Burke, who will compete in the races at 100, 400 and 800 metres, corresponding to the 100 yards, 440 yards and 880 yards races. His records at the American distances are 101-5 seconds, 49 seconds and 1 minute 13 2-5 seconds. He won the interand more important among the Greeks, and as their importance increased the number of the events was also made larger. After the occasion of seventh Olympic games, the wealthy as well as the common citizens turned their attention to them, and from that time until nearly the fall of the Grecian empire the games increased in importance. In the eighteenth Olympiad box-

Ellery H. Clark of Harvard will enter the high and broad jumps, the hop, step and jump and throwing the hammer. He has thrown the hammer 123 feet, jumped 21 feet 10 inches broad and 5 feet 10 5-8 inches high.

T. P. Curtis is a new and promising man on the track. John Graham, athletic manager of the Boston Athletic Association, will be with the team.

TIED FOR FIRST PLACE.

Washington Athletic Club and Carroll Institute Bowling Teams. The Washington Athletic Club and the Carroll Institute are again tied for first place in the bowling league series. The W. A. C. won two games from the Y. M. C. C. last evening on their own alleys, and this puts that organization even with the Carrolls. The W. A. C. boys covered themselves with glory, and bowled a brilliant game. The work of the two leading teams will be watched with a great deal of interest from this time out, as they are both evenly matched, and some close contests are looked for if the teams should end the season tied for first place. The scores last night were as follows: W. A. C., first game, 837; second game, 865. Y. M. C. C., first game, 653; second game, 707. W. A. C. and Carroll Institute have each won 25 and lost

The bowling of the W. A. C. team was of the star order, knocking down 1,702 pins being the largest two-game score, and in their second game 855, being the largest single-game score of the tournament up to date. The team bowling in these games was remarkable, particularly in the second game. In this game nine pins separated the high and low man.

ton Light Infantry Armory last evening were witnessed by a large crowd. The race was for a half mile, open to all amateurs. Three entries were on the books when the time came for starting the race, C. Daly, Elbert Hebberd and Lange Scherer. In the first heat Scherer and Hebberd tied in the time of 50 seconds, while Daly rode in 48 seconds. In the run-off Scherer won in 51 seconds, and in the final between Scherer and Daly the latter won in 51 seconds. Harry V. Greer acted as referee; William Jose and C. L. Petze, judges; George E. Smith, Dr. W. W. Hodges and Rudolph Jose, timers, and W. T. Robertson, starter. Tonight the races will be between Albert Banker and H. E. Gethams, and C. E. Clugy will go against time. These men have records that are well known, and their riding should attract a large number to the ing should attract a large number to the locker room annex of the show.

Opinions About the Wheel. . "Modern Cyclist," writing to The Star, says: "As this is an appropriate time for bicycle enthusiasts to air their views, I want to comment on the tendency of cycledom toward brightly-colored wheels. A few years ago, one seldom saw them finished in anything but a monotonous black enamel, or a rust-enticing nickel; there was no distinction—all looked alike, and one could hardly recognize his own if left among a number of others. The last season has shown a most welcome tendency toward a change, and the exhibit of the leading lines at the cycle show indicates such a full turn of the tide that we may now hope to see a complete break in the monotony "What a funereal aspect our streets would show if all carriages, wagons, herdics and
